

Railways: politics, gender and labour

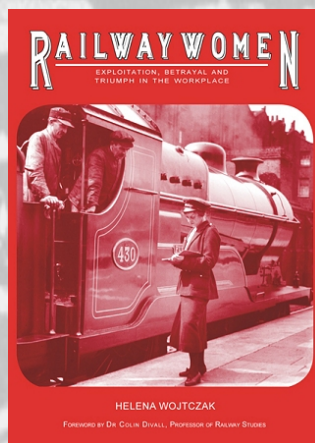

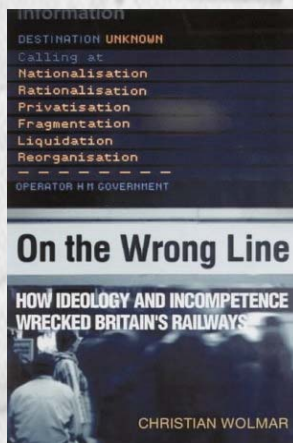

A Working Lives Research Institute Seminar

30th November 2005

2.30 – 5.00pm

Room JS2-75

31 Jewry Street, London, EC3N 2EY

Helena Wojtczak and Christian Wolmar will both give presentations based on their new books. Helena worked as a guard on British Rail for a number of years before writing her book 'Railway Women: Exploitation, Betrayal and Triumph in the Workplace'. Her's is the first book length study of railway women in the UK. Christian Wolmar is a writer and broadcaster on railways. He has written several books on the break up of British Rail and the London Underground. Finally, Heather Connolly from University of Warwick will talk about 'The French railway workers' connection: building a new activists' trade union'.

Further details at www.workinglives.org

Please email Tim Strangleman at t.strangleman@londonmet.ac.uk or call the Working Lives Research Institute on 020 7320 3042 if you would like to attend the seminar.

